FISHER'S LAST DAY.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE EXECUTION OF THE MOLLY MAGUIRE MURDERER OF MORGAN

[EY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., March 27, 1878. To-morrow, as early after ten o'clock as possible, the chiefest of the Molly Maguires that infest this county he threshold of evernity. Thomas P. Fisher at on time held an influential position in public affairs in this county. Ite joined the Molly Maguires, become bodyaster, aided and abetted the murder of Morgan Powell, became intoxicated, and, while in this state semi-conscionsness, dropped words that provoked shing his guilt produced, and all that money and the best legal talent and political influence has availed him naught. has fought desperately and porsistently, and a roung, beautiful and affectionate wife has knelt in upplication before scores of men supposed to be able assist her and her husband in their danger and corrow. Her tears have watered the private offices ad drawing rooms of the optient; she has begged at the door of the powerful in society, and pleaded as only a wife can plead before the Board of Pardons, the last court of appeal; sue has pursued in vain every avenue of hopes, and now is fated to retire rom the well fought contest disconsolate and broken-

From the beginning she has had the sympathy of this community, and when it became known that as early as last Monday Fisher bade her adieu forever, nd notified the Sheriff that he did not want to see her again, the heart of Mauch Chunk was touched and notified the Sheriff that he did not want to see her again, the heart of Mauch Chunk was touched in her behalf, while the strongest terms of detestation for Fisher was freely expressed. Her emotion upon hearing her husband's decision was of the most agenizing character. She was speechless and almost breathless, and let the gloomy walls of the Carbon County Prison with a heart bursting with a woe to which the grave would be a relief. The murderer, with these strange sentiments toward the wife that has nover forsaken him, Las given orders that he will receive no visitors except his spiritual advisers.

A Herald Prepresentative, however, presented himself at the gates of his cell to night. His personal appearance is that of a coarse, counting, selfath, bruild individual, and the treatment of his latifial wife in the last days of his existence proves the truthfulness of the fixeness. He has a buil neck, a broad, heavy lower jaw, covered with heavy, the wrown whiskers; thick, buging lips, denoting sensualism; stubby, dark brown mustache of the straight kind, with a few gray hairs intermixed; high cheek bones, a nose disposed to be thin, but dissolute habits have somewhat changed its natural form into the shape of the small end of a buschali cub. His eyes sre small and light blue, hair thick, coarse, stiff and shocky. This is the picture of time man as he presents himself to-day. When asked for a copy of a statement that he has made and passed into the bands of a gentleman in town, he was greatly inconed to learn that the lact that he made a written statement was known, and with an expression of anger upon his face he picked up a copy of the statement and tore it into shreds. The statement denounces Joseph Lynn, of the Democrat; Charles Mulhern and C. T. McCun, two of the principal witnesses against him, and the Coal and fron Feiber Wynne, of Ashton, were closeted with him for an hour to-night. He said he was ready to die and die not tear the future, but went the bane of sone of his presentions and angry opithees

The preparations for the wake and functal of Fisher are already being made. The waking will continue Thursday, Friday and Saturiay nights, and the funcial will take place on Sunday. Fisher's friends declare that it will be the largest functai that has evertaken place in this county. Fisher takes pride in these assurances, and exhibits a spirit of satisfaction in telling it that can hardly be imagined.

in compile that can hardly be imagined.

INCENDIARY ATTEMPT.

As an evidence that the spirit of Mollylism has not yet been suppressed an attempt was made last night to fire No. 9 shaft at Audeoried. The fismes gamed considerable headway, but, the hour being early and most of the people in the heighborhood not yet in bed, what, under other circumstances, would have been a disastrous conflagration was averted.

A FATHER'S HORRIBLE CRIME. BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD. 1

WHEKLING, W. Va., March 27, 1878. One of the most horrible cases of outrage which ever occurred has come to light at Predmont, W. Va. than Crow, a resident of that place, thirty-eight ars and father of two children, and who has always rne a good reputation, has been guilty of the most little daughter, eight years old, and on three separate occasions he outraged her person by violence. On Saturday afternoon he was in the house with his Saturday atternoon he was in the house with me son, a young boy of ten or twelve, and his daughter. He sent the boy away on some errand and again attempted to outrage his daughter. She resisted, and he gave her a terrible beating. That night the poor little thing told her mother of her father's awith crime, and she, after consulting with the child's grandmonher, had the father arrested.

THERATS OF LYNCHISG.

When the story became known through the town a mob began gathering, and they accurate they would send Nathau Crow to meet John Wallace if they got their hands on him. In order to secure the prisoner's safety he was immediately taken to Cumberland Jail and locked up to await his trial.

RUM AND RUIN.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE OF A ONCE WELL TO DO BUSINESS MAN.

A dramatic scene of attempted suicide occurred yesterday morning at the residence of Mr. Frederick Pentz, No. 13 West Eighteenth street, a few doors from Fifth avenue. Some years ago John Manning, a young and prosperous Irishman, married a daughter of Mr. Peniz, and for a time they lived happily together. Manning was an advertising agent and old a large business among insurance companies and mercantile bouses. He had an office at No. 849 Broadway and was considered to be upon the road to fortune. For what reason does not appear, but he took to excessive drinking after which came a decline of his business and dodoes not appear, but he took to excessive drinking inter which came a decline of his business and domestic troubles, which led to a suit for divorce, begun by Mrs. Manning about two years ago.

The matter has been in the courts ever since, and Mrs. Manning went home to her father's nouse to live, taking with her two children, who have been ett in her custody by order of the Court, pending a jettlement of the divorce proceedings. The busonad continued his excesses, and yesternay morning rang the door bell of his latter-in-law's house and asked to be admitted. He was intoxicated and the servant who answered the summons showed him to the parior and informed his wife of his presence, in demanded to see his children, and was loud in his abuse of those who he said kept them from him. His wife, when she learned of his presence in the house, locked herself in her apartments and refused to see him. The other inmates becoming slatmed for their safety despatched a servant for a policeman. Officer Weeks, of the reenty-ninch precinct, happened to be in the neighborhood, and accompanied the servant. He entered the nall door, and was about to go into the parior, where Manning was sented on a sofa, when a lady and gentleman called to him from the head of the stairs to come up. He did so, and they begged of him to arrest Manning, who, they said, was drunk and had a pistol. They were straid be would do something desperate. When they agreed to preier a charge against him the officer turned on the stairs to descend and make the arrest.

the starts to descend and make the arrest.

At that moment a pistol report came from the parlor. The officer hastened down the stains and found Manishing still stilling on the soils with the blood tracking down the right side of his face from a wound in the right ear. Before the officer had crossed the threshold of the parlor door Manning raised his right hand, in which he held a revolver, and fired a second shot into his head, the ball entering the right ear to cose proximity to the first. He left back and lay stunned for a lew moments.

An ambulance was sent for, not before it arrived Manning regained consciousness and in his drunken frenzy said to the officer, "For God's aske kill me; they will not tel me see my children." Upon the arrival of the ambulance he was removed to the New York Hospital, where his wounds were examined and pronounced not dangerous, as the builets were found not to have penetrated the bone.

An intendigit he was represented as in a comfortable condition.

LXCISE MATTERS.

During their continuance in office after the fight of Owen Murphy Messra Mortou and Patterson, the remsining Excise Commissioners, received about $17,000 on account of licenses. They acted upon the insjority of applications and issued licenses, the fees for which amounted to about $14,000. That rum will be turned over to the dity, and the balance will be fanded by the old Commissioners to their successors, Messrs, Merkle and Morrison, to be applied by them for the payment of the licenses they may grant to the applicance or to be paid back to them in case the license is refused.

LIGHT ON FIFTH AVENUE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-I desire to call the attention of the authorities to the absence of gaslight on the upper part of Fifth avenue. It is now the great "drive" of New York, and it seems really strange that it should not be lit up at night, while many miles of unfrequented streets and avonue are brilliantly illuminated. HORSE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD :-Wishing to see the miniature yacht race at Prospec Park last Saturday I asked information of a Brooklyn friend "how to get there," and "if I could take la-dies?" He advised me to dispense with the latter. dea?" He advised moto dispense with the latter.

I went alone and found out the reason for his him.

After all the bragging about Prospect Park there is not a decent footpath to the yacht wharf from either side of the Park. It is like travelling over a desay, stony country read. Why can't the Prospect Park Commissioners make a decent temporary path of Scrimshaw, two feet wide, for the relief of pedestriabs, if they are not prepared to finish that part of the Park is a permanent manner? Footpaths are sadly needed also across that forform plaza.

OBITUARY.

BIR GEORGE GILBERT SCOTT. Sir George Gilbert Scott, the architect, is dead. He was grandson of the Rev. Thomas Scott, author of the "Commentary on the Bible," a leading member of the school of Gothic revival in architecture, and was born in 1811, at Gawcott, near Buckingbum, of which village his father was incumbent. At an early age he began studying and sketching from ancient churches, which induced his inther to place him with an architect, though the practice with which he became acquainted aftaste. For some years he was in partnership with Mr. W. B. Moffatt, but this connection terminated in 1845. The first work which brought him into notice was the "Martyrs' Memorial" at Oxford in into notice was the "Martyrs' Memorial" at Oxford in 1842. It was followed by the new church at Camber-well in 1842-3, and fator works at Cryydon, Leeds, &c., &c., which display maturer taste and knowledge. The rebuilding of the Church of St. Nicnoles, Hamburg, destroyed in the great fire of 1842, was intrusted to him, after a compelition to which architects were invited from all parts of Europe, It is one of the most important Gothic works of the day, and will cost, when completed, £150,000. In 1856 another design was furnished by him for the new Hôtel de Ville and Senate House at Hamburg, and ethe cathedral church of St. John's, N. F. was crected from hig design in 1848. More recently new Hotel de Ville and Senate House at Hamburg, and the cathedral church of St. John's, N. F., was creoted from his design in 1848. More reconstitute parish church of Donessier, destroyed by fire, has been restored under his superintendence. Mr. Scott, who has been employed in extensive restorations at Ely Cathedral, Westminster Aboey, &c., succeeded Mr. Blore in 1849 as official architect of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, has erected the new Gothic gatehouse and houses adjoining the west of the Minister, and has written a "Plea for the Faithful Rectoration of our Ancient Churches," published in 1850; "Romarks on Socular and Domestic Architecture," "Glessings from Westminster Abbey," in 1862; and "Conservation of Ancient Architecture," "Glessings from Westminster Abbey," in 1862; and "Conservation of Ancient Architecture, and Monuments: a Paper," in 1864. The zest which he displayed in the establishment of the Architectural Museum (at first in Canhon Row and afterward at the museum at Kensington) rendered it one of the museum at Kensington) rendered it one of the museum at Kensington, rendered it one of the museum at Kensington) rendered it one of the most interesting insultations in the metropolita Mr. Scott, who was elected an associate of the Royal Academy in 1852, in conjunction with Mr. Sydney Smirke undertook temporarity the architectural lectures at the Academy, and in 1800 was elected R. A. He was aschilect of the new Foreign Office, and, in conjunction with Mr. Disby Wyatt, 'of the proposed new Injia Office, in addition to the great works carried out by him, in the cathedrals of Ely, Hereford, Lionfeld and Ripon, he was engaged on those of Salisbury, St. David's and some others, and the restoration of courches throughout the kingdom. Among his secular works may be mentioned Kelham Hall, Nottinghamshire; Waltar House, Waswickshire; Hafedunos House, North Wales; Lee Priory, Kent; the town hall at Proston and the infirmary at Leeus Mr. Scott was appointed by the Queen architect to the national memor
